Efforts to advance healthy housing in Syracuse, NY
64,866 housing units

- 21,127 owner occupied
- 10,127 vacant
- 33,654 rental units
While only 20% of kids in Onondaga County reside in the city of Syracuse, over 90% of children with EBLL reside in the city.
While more than 60% of housing in Syracuse is rental occupied, this rate jumps to 85% in our more distressed neighborhoods.
On average, only 46% of rental units citywide have passed interior inspections.
We’ve also found that our neighborhoods with the most violations also have higher concentrations of poverty, rental properties, and lead poisoning rates.
As a result, Syracuse is working to develop a more comprehensive approach to health and housing by redesigning many aspects of its work to emphasize proactive enforcement, relationships with tenants and landlords, and leveraging community partnerships.
ENFORCEMENT
Building a culture of proactive enforcement
Prioritizing health and safety
Increased training in enforcing health and environmental threats (GHHI)
Streamlining complaint and enforcement procedures

COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIPS
Working closely with local health and social services departments to reach most vulnerable populations
Convening working groups of local officials, community leaders, and residents to identify and address gaps
Engaging Syracuse University, SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry, and the City of Syracuse’s Innovation Team in research to inform practices

TENANTS
Increased transparency about property conditions through online web portal
Increase outreach efforts and dissemination of information about health hazards in properties and how

LANDLORDS
Designing new systems to aimed at increasing compliance
Eliminating fees for periodic inspections
Automated notices regarding new complaints
Facilitating home improvement assistance funding

I didn’t know what I wanted to do, so thought law school was the only option for a political science major...I was wrong!
Problem: The dropout rate at Syracuse University, in Syracuse, New York, is too high.

Proposed policy: Increase all scholarship assistance to sophomores with above a 3.0 GPA by $2,000.
